8.4 A+ is a class for cars that compete in times faster than Class A

8.5 Classes A to D are determined by breakout times as per 8.1 above.

8.6 Vehicles/Drivers will be classed accordingly after the official qualifying session of the first race weekend. A driver will be entered into the class equivalent to the lap time set in the first official qualifying session the driver enters.

8.7 Vehicles/Drivers that enter for the first time in the season after the first official race weekend will be classed after their first official qualifying session.

8.8 Should a driver not be able to enter a qualifying session in their first race meeting, the driver will still start from the back of the grid for the first race.

8.10 If a vehicle/driver breaks out of his class in an official qualifying session or race, he/she will immediately be moved up to the next class and be scored in that class for the day. The vehicle/driver will then remain in that class for the rest of the season unless he/she breaks out of the new class again at which time rule 8.10 will apply again.

8.11 All points will be carried over to the new class and the overall championship for the season according to the following schedule:

- Round 1 - 4 = 100%
- Round 5 - 6 = 80%
- Round 7 - 8 = 60%

8.12 A competitor may at any time apply to the committee in writing, supported by good reason, to change a vehicle from one class to a lower class. The committee will ultimately decide on whether or not to move the competitor to the lower class and if points earned will be carried over and in what ratio.

8.13 Any competitor who has had his/her vehicle re-classified by the committee shall have the right, within 14 days of being notified, to address the committee in writing, objecting to the reclassification. After considering the views of the competitor, the committee shall have the right to change or abide by their decision.

8.14 All class changes shall be notified to the competitor in writing. Email will be considered as written notification.

- 8.15 If a competitor changes his/her car but remains in the same class for that season, his/her points will not be reset and will be carried over to the new vehicle/driver championship.
